James was a long-time resident of Denham Springs, La and was lovingly known through the years as Tiny, Heavy, Jake, Terry, and to his grandchildren, he was Mampaw. But most people called him J.T.

J.T. was born September 20, 1933 in Independence, La to Thomas and Mae Carney. He was the baby of 12 children. He met his wife, Bobbie Jean Carney, in Amite, La, and they were married in 1960. They began residency in Denham Springs, La in 1968 and had four children. Before retiring in 1998, J.T. owned his own plumbing company, Carney Plumbing, for more than 30 years and served the Baton Rouge area. After retirement, he enjoyed taking road trips, visiting family and old friends, and sharing old stories with everyone he met. This was his favorite past-time.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Thomas Isaiah and Mae Bennett Carney, his wife Bobbie Jean Carney, his brothers, Claude, Henry, Clyde, T.C., Recey, Aldee, Leroy, and Edward Carney, and three sisters, Irene Carney, Alma Lee Robinson, and Elouise Lee, his grandson, Landon Carney, and a special friend, Alline Albin.

J.T. is survived by his four children, Randy Carney, Vanessa Foret (Mike), Terry Carney (Cindy McClure), and Kimberly Bartlett (Hank Davidson), his seven grandchildren, Whitney Triplett, Kayleigh Triplett, Alyssa Triplett, Benjamin Carney, Ashlyn Carney, Lauren Bartlett, and Andrew Bartlett, and two great-grandchildren, Remi Anne Gehegan and Emery Sophia Ragusa, and many nieces and nephews. Also, his faithful and loyal companion, Little Bit.

Vanessa, Terry and Kim would like to express gratitude to their oldest brother, Randy, who watched over their father daily for many years with patience, care, and love.
