For years Joseph tried to keep his life on the right path, he enjoyed bow shooting, fishing, hunting and working on vehicles, four wheelers and boats with his "little buddy", Hudson, who considered him superman. Joseph was naturally gifted, he could easily pick up on anything and seem like he was a pro. Joseph worked hard and loved harder until his disease of addiction would make its way back to the forefront of his mind. He struggled with drug addiction for half of his life, finally succumbing to a fatal overdose.
